

Nationwide Children's Hospital URM Pediatric Externship

Nationwide Children's Pediatric Residency Training Program values diversity as it improves patient care and enhances our educational mission. We welcome students who are Underrepresented in Medicine (URM) from U.S. medical schools to apply for a subinternship at Nationwide Children's Hospital. A stipend and assistance with housing will be provided to help defray the cost of an away rotation.

The goal of the program is to expose underrepresented senior medical students from outside institutions to clinical training in our academic pediatrics program.

Benefits of the program:

- Four week inpatient subinternship experience at a free-standing quaternary-care, nationally recognized pediatric institution
- Course credit from home institution via application through VSAS
- Inclusion in resident conferences and activities
- $1000 stipend for travel/living expenses
- Housing provided by Nationwide Children's Hospital
- Mentorship by residents, faculty and medical student as well as residency program leadership
- Additional meetings with Nationwide Children's faculty can be arranged at the request of the student based on their areas of interest
- Residency interview with Nationwide Children's pediatric residency program during the experience
- Opportunity to explore Columbus, OH

Program Directors: Nancy Liao, MD and Becky Scherzer, MD
