Announcements

The PhD Career Connections series kicks off this year on Friday, September 12, at 9am with Laura Terry, PhD, associate with management consulting company McKinsey & Co. Registration requested.

Two additional small-group sessions with PhD Career Connections speaker Dr. Terry will focus on daily tasks and skills of a management consultant and another on case session interview questions. If interested in either, please fill out the following survey to reserve a potential spot.

The Fall 2014 ASPIRE Modules will be unveiled very soon. The modules are short, non-credit bearing electives that will broaden the training experiences of biomedical sciences trainees with theme areas of business/entrepreneurship, communication, and clinical research. For more information, email kate.stuart@vanderbilt.edu.

American Medical Writers Association annual conference is Oct 8-11 in Memphis.

The American Institute for Medical and Biological Engineering (AIMBE) is hosting a Public Policy Training Institute on Sept 3-5 in Washington, DC.

Spotlight

For introverts, networking and interviewing is the last thing they want to do. But, introverts can actually excel at both because of their natural tendencies to be great listeners and good analyzers.

The NIH Office of Intramural Training and Education (OITE) blog offers the article, "The Introverted Job Seeker," with recommendations on how to care for your introverted self, especially during the job search when introverts are putting themselves "out there" more than usual!
